

The New York Times

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 2002

Galleries: Chelsea.

JAMES LECCE, Cristinerose, 529 West 20th Street, (212) 206-0297 (through Feb. 16). In suave, confectionery colors under thick, glossy coats of clear resin, Mr. Lecce's paintings are like enlarged cross-sections of marbled taffy. Ribbons of striated color swirl around broader, blobby forms to seductively decorative effect (Johnson).